Because of unforeseen and unavoidable circumstances, I will not be present when the Senate votes on final passage of this bill today. But were I able to be here, I would vote no, because this bill is clearly not in the best interests of the American people.●

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Consumer Rental-Purchase Agreement Act of 2005".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the rental-purchase industry provides a service that meets and satisfies the demands of many consumers;

(2) each year, approximately 2,300,000 United States households enter into rental-purchase transactions, and over a 5-year period, approximately 4,900,000 United States households will do so;

(3) competition among the various firms engaged in the extension of rental-purchase transactions would be strengthened by informed use of rental-purchase transactions; and

(4) the informed use of rental-purchase transactions results from an awareness of the cost thereof by consumers.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are to assure the availability of rental-purchase transactions; and to assure simple, meaningful, and consistent disclosure of rental-purchase terms so that consumers will be able to more readily compare the available rental-purchase terms and avoid uninformed use of rental-purchase transactions, and to protect consumers against unfair rental-purchase practices.

“(B) if the consumer returns or voluntarily surrenders the property covered by the agreement, other than through judicial process, during the applicable reinstatement period set forth in subparagraph (A), permits the consumer to reinstate the agreement during a period of at least 60 days after the date of the return or surrender of the property by the payment of all amounts previously due under the agreement, any applicable fees, and a payment for the next rental period;

“(b) REPOSSESSION DURING REINSTATEMENT PERIOD.—Subsection (a)(4) shall not be construed so as to prevent a merchant from attempting to repossess property during the reinstatement period pursuant to subsection (a)(4)(A), but such a repossession does not affect the right of the consumer to reinstate under subsection (a)(4).

“SEC. 1006. RIGHT TO ACQUIRE OWNERSHIP.

A requirement that the consumer pay an unpaid late charge or other fee or charge which the merchant has previously billed to the consumer shall not constitute an additional fee or charge for purposes of this subsection.

“(A) the fair market value of the property, as determined by regulation of the Board;

“(B) any early purchase option amount provided in the rental-purchase agreement; or

“(9) a provision requiring the consumer to pay more than 1 late fee or charge for an unpaid or delinquent periodic payment, regardless of the period in which the payment remains unpaid or delinquent, or to pay a late fee or charge for any periodic payment because a previously assessed late fee has not been paid in full.

“SEC. 1008. STATEMENT OF ACCOUNTS.

“Upon request of a consumer, a merchant shall provide a statement of the account of the consumer. If a consumer requests a statement for an individual account more than 4 times in any 12-month period, the merchant may charge a reasonable fee for the additional statements requested in excess of 4 times during that 12-month period.

“SEC. 1009. RENEGOTIATIONS AND EXTENSIONS.

“(a) RENEGOTIATIONS.—For purposes of this section, a ‘renegotiation’ occurs when a rental-purchase agreement is satisfied and replaced by a new agreement undertaken by the same consumer. A renegotiation requires new disclosures under this title, except as provided in subsection (c).

“(b) EXTENSIONS.—For purposes of this section, an ‘extension’ is an agreement by the consumer and the merchant to continue an existing rental-purchase agreement beyond the original end of the payment schedule, but does not include a continuation that is the result of a renegotiation.

“(2) CLEARLY AND CONSPICUOUSLY.—As used in this section, the term ‘clearly and conspicuously’ means that information required to be disclosed to the consumer shall appear in a type size, prominence, and location as to be noticeable, readable, and comprehensible to an ordinary consumer.

“SEC. 1011. RENTAL-PURCHASE ADVERTISING.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—If an advertisement for a rental-purchase transaction refers to or states the amount of any payment for any specific item or set of items, the merchant making the advertisement shall also clearly and conspicuously state in the advertisement for the item or set of items advertised—

“(1) that the transaction advertised is a rental-purchase agreement;

“(2) the amount, timing, and total number of rental payments necessary to acquire ownership under the rental-purchase agreement;

“(3) the amount of the rental-purchase cost;

“(4) that to acquire ownership of the property, the consumer must pay the rental-purchase cost plus applicable taxes; and

“(5) whether the stated payment amount and advertised rental-purchase cost is for new or used property.

“(b) PROHIBITION.—An advertisement for a rental-purchase agreement shall not state or imply that a specific item or set of items is available at specific amounts or terms, unless the merchant usually and customarily offers, or will offer, the item or set of items at the stated amounts or terms.

“(c) CLEARLY AND CONSPICUOUSLY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘clearly and conspicuously’ means that required disclosures shall be presented in a type, size, shade, contrast, prominence, location, and manner, as applicable to different media for advertising, so as to be readily noticeable and comprehensible to the ordinary consumer.

“(2) REGULATORY GUIDANCE.—The Board shall prescribe regulations on principles and factors to meet the clear and conspicuous standard, as appropriate to print, video, audio, and computerized advertising, reflecting the principles and factors typically applied in each medium by the Federal Trade Commission.

“(3) LIMITATION.—Nothing contrary to, inconsistent with, or in mitigation of, the disclosures required by this section shall be used in any advertisement in any medium, and no audio, video, or print technique shall be used that is likely to obscure or detract significantly from the communication of the required disclosures.

“SEC. 1012. CIVIL LIABILITY.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in section 1013, any merchant who fails to comply with any requirement of this title with respect to any consumer is liable to such consumer as provided for leases in section 130. For purposes of this section, the term ‘creditor’ as used in section 130 shall include a ‘merchant’, as defined in section 1001.

“(b) JURISDICTION OF COURTS; LIMITATION ON ACTIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 130(e), any action under this section may be brought in any United States district court, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction, before the end of the 1-year period beginning on the date on which the last payment was made by the consumer under the rental-purchase agreement.

“(2) RECOUPMENT OR SET-OFF.—This subsection shall not bar a consumer from asserting a violation of this title in an action to collect an obligation arising from a rental-purchase agreement, which was brought after the end of the 1-year period described in paragraph (1) as a matter of defense by recoupment or set-off in such action, except as otherwise provided by State law.

“SEC. 1013. ADDITIONAL GROUNDS FOR CIVIL LIABILITY.

By Mr. CRAIG (for himself, Mr. BINGAMAN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. BURR, Mr. DURBIN, and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 604. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to authorize expansion of medicare coverage of medical nutrition therapy services; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, in this day of runaway medical costs, I would like to take a moment to highlight one cost-effective component of healthcare; Medical Nutrition Therapy (MNT). MNT can be used to promote health and functionality and effects the quality of life for many Americans. MNT is also an effective disease management component that lessens chronic disease risk, slows disease progression and reduces symptoms. Currently, Medicare beneficiaries can have access to MNT, but only for the care of diabetes and kidney disease.

The legislation that I have introduced, along with Mr. BINGAMAN and other colleagues, would give the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services the authority, using the National Coverage Determination (NCD) process, to expand the MNT benefit beyond diabetes and renal diseases. Currently, Congress must pass legislation for beneficiaries to receive MNT for each and every condition or disease for which MNT proves itself to be cost effective. Choosing to rely on the NCD process would allow CMS to make decisions based upon the science, and establish the extent to which Medicare will cover specific services, procedures or technologies on a national basis. This is what the NCD is designed to do.

CMS reported to Congress last year that there are other conditions, such as hypertension and dyslipidemia, HIV/AIDS and cancer, where evidence supports the cost-effectiveness of MNT as part of the care plan. It is time to make the MNT benefit more preventive in nature, and combat diabetes, hypertension, and dyslipidemia in the early stages of the diseases. It makes good sense for CMS, which routinely reviews the science behind recommendations, to direct this benefit appropriately without having to get Congressional approval for each and every disease.

It is important to note that this new language does not mandate any expansion; it only gives CMS the authority to include coverage of MNT based on scientific evidence that the proposed coverage is reasonable, necessary and cost effective. I encourage your support for this legislation.

S. 606. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act to eliminate methyl tertiary butyl ether from the United States fuel supply, to increase production and use of renewable fuel, and to increase the Nation's energy independence, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, last weekend I joined four of my colleagues to travel to Alaska, to see first-hand the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

It's not a welcoming place—it's cold and icy; vast and empty . . . even the Caribou didn't notice our presence. But beneath the icy tundra is one of the largest oil fields in the world—an oil field so vast it could power the State of South Dakota for centuries.

This week the Senate is moving forward on legislation to explore ANWR. This is just one piece of finally passing a national energy policy and reducing our dependence on foreign sources of oil.

We cannot act fast enough: This week gas prices hit record highs. And with oil hovering around $55 per barrel and threatening to move even higher, it's critical that the Senate act to reduce America's dependence on foreign sources of oil.

ANWR is one piece of the solution. But equally important—and even more important to my State of South Dakota—is investing in renewable fuels like ethanol.

It is time for the United States Senate to pass the Renewable Fuels Standard.

The Renewable Fuels Standard has languished for too long. Despite strong bipartisan support and private-sector agreements, past Congresses have failed to pass a national energy policy that includes a Renewable Fuels Standard. Now, we have another opportunity.

This legislation has a special importance to my State. South Dakota is a heavily agricultural State and the Nation's fifth largest producer of ethanol. The market for ethanol has breathed new life into the small towns and small farms that dot the prairies of South Dakota. When driving through the rural counties of South Dakota, it's not unusual to observe the silos and storage tanks of an ethanol plant silhouetted against the prairie horizon. In many ways, the ethanol industry and its physical manifestations have become a part of the rural American identity.

Make no mistake about it: South Dakota's farmers are relying on the passage of the Renewable Fuels Standard to provide a surge in corn prices and a guaranteed market for their product.

This legislation is an improvement upon what passed out of the United States Senate last Congress. It increases the ethanol gallon requirement to 6 billion gallons, an increase of 1 billion gallons.

As we have a tremendous opportunity and responsibility to move this country forward. This legislation is vital to the ethanol industry, and will strengthen our economy, and our energy security. After so many failed attempts to pass this important legislation, I hope this Senate will finally finish the job and pass a Renewable Fuel Standard.

By Mr. HARKIN:

S. 607. A bill to amend the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 and the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 with respect to early retirement benefits, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a bill that will prevent workers from losing a large chunk of their pension when they work for a company that sells their division.

This legislation is prompted by articles written by Mary Williams Walsh in the New York Times outlining the story of how a group of workers in Olean, NY lost $25 million in promised benefits when their division was acquired and then spun off.

Current law says that if a company wants to amend their pension plan, they have to give workers the share of their early retirement subsidy that they have already earned. However, a company doesn't have to do that if your division is bought and sold—even if the workers are in the same building, sitting at the same desk, and doing the same job the whole time. That's just ridiculous.

In this case, Halliburton purchased a division of Dresser Industries, and seventeen months later spun off the Olean, NY division, netting $215 million. They treated those employees as if they had resigned and gone to work for Ingersoll-Rand. While employees who were 55 years old were kept whole, anyone younger lost up to half the value of their pension overnight, without being informed. They realized what had happened in June 2002 when they got notices in the mail telling them that they had 90 days to either collect a much smaller benefit than they had anticipated, or lose their right to a lump sum payment forever. Some recent retirees were even told that they got paid too much, and had to give back pension money they already received.

Meanwhile, the CEO during that period, now Vice President DICK CHENEY, got a special pension deal from the board totaling an estimated $10 million in benefits, even though he hadn't worked there long enough to qualify for a pension under the usual rules.

This is a completely unconscionable way to cheat hard working people out of their promised pension benefits.

My will would simply require that companies must follow the same rules about applying credits toward pension under mergers and acquisitions that they do under any other kind of pension plan amendment.

By Mr. HARKIN:

S. 608. A bill to create an independent office in the Department of Labor to advocate on behalf of pension participants, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I rise to reintroduce a bill originally introduced in the 106th Congress that seeks to create an Office of Pension Participant Advocacy at the Department of Labor.

When I first introduced this bill, it was just a good idea. Now, it has become an absolute necessity. Since 2000, unimaginable pension loss horror stories have cropped up in the wake of major corporate bankruptcies like Enron and WorldCom. People have lost their guaranteed pensions to mergers and acquisitions and to misinformation and to just plain irresponsibility.

On March 3, the New York Times reported that companies are still desperately seeking ways to scrape funds out of their pensions—despite market downfalls and despite the dire situation at the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corporation. And who ultimately ends up paying the price when the company ends up bailing on its obligation? Pension plan participants pay.

Many of these people have absolutely nowhere to turn. People who have a genuine legal claim to their pension, but have been unfairly denied it, can end up spending countless hours calling phone number after phone number and getting the run around, and maybe receiving technical assistance years later.

Individual pension plans are complex, as are the laws that govern them. Currently, multiple Federal agencies share jurisdiction over pension law. Time and time again, the needs of pension participants are ignored, and pensioners don't get help in navigating the government's pension bureaucracy.

This office would accelerate good public policy. Several years ago, I heard from an employee of a large technology manufacturer that gave early retirees the choice between taking either an annuity of $1,470 per month, or an annuity of $200 per month plus $107,300 as a lump sum, both payable at age 55. While the lump sum package may appear more lucrative at first glance, the annuity option for a given employee had a value of approximately $228,000—more than 80 percent greater than the lump sum option touted by the employer.

I also heard from a 53 year old man with 26 years of service. He shared with me the complicated summary of his pension options he received from his employer. The first line offers a $423,000 lump sum, which looks like it is based on the value of the $3,140 per month annuity he would normally receive. However, the true actuarial value of the annuity option turns out to be closer to $511,000. Stated another way, the $423,000 lump sum offer is equivalent to a monthly benefit of $2,590, almost $500 a month less than the annuity option would provide. People lost half the value of their pensions to this kind of misinformation, many of whom never found out how they had been hurt.

Hearing stories like that prompted me to write to the Treasury requesting that they close this loophole and require that employees get an apples-to-apples comparison of their benefits, and Treasury did. However, how many fewer people would have been given misleading information about their pensions if there were someone within the government specifically charged with seeking out problems like these?

In the years that I have been working to fight age discriminatory practices sometimes used when converting from traditional defined benefit plans to cash balance pensions, I heard from a number of people who lost huge amounts of money in their pensions to "wear away," again, often not realizing what had happened to them until their nest egg was gone.

For example, take Larry Cutrone. He was one of thousands of people who figured out how much they lost in their cash balance conversion. He said that before AT&T converted his pension, it was valued at $350,000. After the conversion, in July 1997, the value dropped to $138,000. The calculation period for his pension was frozen at 1994–1996 salaries, so no value to his retirement account was added for any years he worked after the conversion.

He said:

In September 2001, I was "downsized" out of AT&T and decided to take my pension. I discovered that it translated into an annual income of just $23,444 instead of the $47,303 income under the old plan.

When these plans were changed over, workers were not informed that this could happen. They woke up one day and found out: they have less than 50 percent of what they thought they were going to get in their retirement.

Good public policy on pensions should never, ever have allowed that. People need someone on their side, because large corporations have plenty of people on their side.

This office would not only provide technical assistance to participants, but would serve as a voice to advocate for participants' rights in general within the Administration. Corporations who cheat employees out of their pensions should not be able to wait for a retiree to notice that they've been taken. There should be someone in the Federal government actively pursuing companies who use their employees' pension plans as their own private piggy bank.

The Office of Pension Participant Advocacy created in this bill would: actively seek out information and suggestions on pension policies and on Federal agencies which affect pension participants.

Evaluate the efforts of Federal agencies, businesses and industry to assist pension participants.

Identify significant problems faced by employees and retirees.

Make annual recommendations documenting significant pension problems and recommending legislative and regulatory solutions.

And examine existing pension plans and determine the extent to which current law serves pensioners in those plans.

We need one central place where pension participants can turn to when problems arise. We need one place in government whose sole obligation is to look out for the general pension interests of employees and retirees concerning their pensions. We need an office that will be an advocate for pension participants. For that reason, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this critical legislation.
